RED PEPPER SET CAR A-SNEEZING

Woman Who Carried It Got Seat, Anyway, for Others Sped Away.

"God bless you," said an old gentleman to the girl who sneezed first. But after that—

A stout woman who carried several small packages got on a fourth-floor Broadway car at Forty-second street last evening. She edged her way into the car and hung onto a strap. Pretty soon the car stopped suddenly and the woman was stopped violently between the front and rear seats. One of her little bundles was broken, and from the slit in the wrapping poured a slender thread of red pepper. Instantly every one in the car was into a paroxysm of sneezing. The thin cords of "sneezers" was deafening. The passengers jumped to their feet and, coughing, the train air-brake, wiping their eyes and noses, but sneezing, every second, stamped to the doors. The car was stopped immediately and the brakewoman soon carried away the red pepper.

Some bodies the car again. Almost immediately the woman with the packages sat down and snuggled said: "Well, it's a red pepper, I found a seat, anyway."

Then she sneezed. Nobody said "God

CARPETS AND RUGS,
LINOLEUMS, OILCLOTHS
AND MATTINGS,
LACE CURTAINS, UPHOLSTERIES,
BEDSTEADS AND BEDDING,
HOUSEHOLD LINENS,
CHINA AND HOUSEFURNISHINGS.

OUR sales for Monday and Tuesday were so far beyond our expectations that we practically sold out of several lines. We accept this as an acknowledgment by discerning home furnishers of New York that our values are superior to any to be found elsewhere. Mammoth new selections have been added for the remainder of the week. To-morrow will be made a typical housefurnishing day, although we can promise the very greatest possible saving if you will come any day during the week.

RUGS! Take your choice of the finest collection of Rugs in New York at about half price.
